A PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL-PICTURE

"All Aboard for Brindisi" is the Paramount-Burton Holmes release for Feb. 6th; this is a pictorialization of one of the most delightful cruises in the world, from Egypt to Italy,--a cruise de luxe on one of the finest steamers afloat, from the interesting city of Alexandria to the much-written-of Brindisi. The people with whom you come in contact on this cruise, include genuine Princes of Egypt, sons of the reigning Sultan, also charming members of the fair sex of Syrian sweetness and Leventine loveliness,-- an Oriental "Fatty Arbuckle",-- and last but not least in interest, Caruso's chef from the Hotel Knickerbocker in New York, who presided over the Ritz-like culinary department of the floating palace on which your cruise is made. Brindisi was famous when the Romans built the Appian Way,-- 2,000 years ago; you can see the crumbling columns which, even today, mark the beginning of this most famous Roman road.
